30.11.2008

Since 30.11.2008, Staffordshire Bull Terrier (SBT), American Staffordshire Terrier (AST), Bull Terrier (BT), (all three recognized breeds by the FCI/AKC, SBT and BT by KC) and Pit Bull Terrier (PBT) are ban in the canton and the city of Zurich (Switzerland).

They are allowed to continue to live until to their natural death.

From the 1st of January 2010 it is no more allowed to breed or to acquire them.

Visitors with this three recognized breeds, (SBT, AST, BT) and the phenotype (PBT) has to walk them on the leash and with muzzle on.

The reason was an attack by 3 escaped Pit Bulls in December 2005, where a 5-year-old boy was killed.

The escaped dogs belonged to a criminal guy from Italy- a man, who was well known by the local police. But the police was unable to stop his illegal activities on the right time.

Arbitrarily, Pit Bulls and also 3 recognized breeds are now ban. The politicians (EVP- Evangelical People's Party, Switzerland) said, that the reason to ban also the three other breeds is their visual similarity.

A quite stupid comment, if you know how a Bull Terrier looks.

The law was amended by a referendum decided after the yellow press has repeatedly reported against these breeds.

It is a disgrace for our country and I hope this trend does not continue expanding on the whole of Switzerland.

Switzerland is a small, really small country with 26 cantons and 26 different governments. Since this attack, every government of every canton try to double up the stupidities from his neighbours.

The canton of Geneva has his ban list (15 breeds) since this summer and in the canton of Valais (13 breeds) the list exists since 2 years.

Watch out if you like to visit Switzerland with (or without) your dog. Maybe its better if you ignore (ban) Switzerland as destination for any activity like holidays or business.
